Anonymity Networks Xavier Hollenbeck
The Internet was not designed for anonymity: Ip addresses serve as virtual mailing addresses, which means that any time any resource on the Internet is accessed, it is accessed from a particular Ip address. This address can be mapped to a particular Internet Service Provider (Isp), and this Isp can then provide information about what customer that Ip address was leased to. This does not necessarily implicate a specific individual (because other people could be using that customer's connection, especially if the customer is a public resource, such as a library), but it provides regional information and serves as powerful circumstantial evidence. Anonymizing services such as I2P and Tor address the issue of Ip tracking.
