PhD Football: Scouting (Volume 3) Mr. Michael J. Lowry
The scouting and game-preparation processes are conceivably the least exposed and least understood phases of the aggregate football program as it pertains to the general knowledge of the public and the average football aficionado. Supposition and conjecture suggest and imply few individuals, including the most dedicated of football fans, are aware of the time commitment, involvement, depth, and detail comprising the processes of film study, tendency analysis, statistical comparisons, producing the scouting report, computer-software applications, complex digital and video mechanisms, and personnel evaluation. Suffice to say – scouting and game-preparation methods are central to the success of today's football program through the leveraging of innovative technologies, computer software, data analysis, and database management. The ability to appropriately evaluate personnel, assess play-calling tendencies, coordinate large databases of statistics, and analyze various football schemes are all central tenets of the scouting process.
